Case 3:17-cv-00652-KDB-DSC Document 28-17 Filed 08/30/18 Page 48 of 59 87

1917. We make or have made pretzel products in a variety of shapes and sizes, including in the form of rods, twists, sticks, thins, waves, footballs, hearts and braided twists.

4. In association with its products, I am aware that Frito-Lay has used the generic terms “crisp” or “crisps” for snack food items which have been produced under various brand names since at least as early as 1959.

5. Since the early 1960’s, Frito-Lay has sold MUNCHOS potato crisps.

6. Since the early 1990’s, Frito-Lay has made and sold BAKED LAY’S and BAKED RUFFLES potato crisps.

7. In the last 10 years, Frito-Lay has made and sold a wide variety of new products, including crackers, for which the word “crisps” is used on packaging as part of the generic product descriptor. These products include, but are not limited to, LAY’S STAX potato crisps, LAY’S cracker crisps, STACY’S soy crisps, STACY’S pita crisps, TRUENORTH nut crisps, and FLAT EARTH fruit crisps and veggie crisps.

8. In the snack food industry, Frito-Lay and its competitors have long used the word CRISP or CRISPS to identify the crunchiness or hardness of an item – to positively suggest its texture or style of “bite.” In the United States, the term CRISPS was first and most frequently used on potato-based snack items; however, industry usage of CRISPS is clearly expanding to other items, such as breads, crackers, cheese, bagels and pita, among others.

9. New products called CRISPS are launched frequently in the snack food industry, including the recent national launches by Nabisco of RITZ MUNCHABLES PRETZEL CRISPS (Exhibit 25 and by Keebler of its TOWNHOUSE FLATBREAD CRISPS (Exhibit 26).

10. Many snack food companies use the word “crisps” to identify the required serving size information. For example, Pringles (Exhibit 27), Genisoy (Exhibit 28), Kitchen Table

Bakers (Exhibit 29) and many of Frito-Lay's own products list the serving size by a number of "crisps."

11. Exhibit 30 is a printout from the USDA National Nutrient Database for Standard Reference includes an entry for "snacks, soy chips or crisps, salted." This is evidence that the USDA uses the words CHIPS and CRISPS interchangeably.

12. Exhibit 31 is a printout from a March 2006 "Discussion Paper on Acrylamide" from the Joint FAO/WHO Food Standards Programme (FAO is the Food & Agriculture Organization of the United Nations; WHO is the World Health Organization). The document refers to "potato crisps" and provided explanatory footnotes. Footnote (a) indicates that a potato crisp is a "potato snack product that is thinly sliced and fried (includes foods called potato chips in some regions including North America.)" Footnote (b) indicates that "potato products that are more thickly sliced (referred to as French fries in some regions including North America, or as chips in the UK.)" The same table also lists "corn crisps." This discussion paper clearly shows that reputable, international groups rely on the generic term "crisps" to connote processes and styles of ready-to-eat snack food items.

13. Exhibit 32 is a CD-ROM containing research we obtained from the IRI (Information Resources Inc.) database to identify UPC codes where the product name or descriptor includes the word "crisp." Over 680 entries were uncovered showing the abundance (and proliferation) of products in the U.S. that are called "CRISP" or "CRISPS" accounting for many millions of dollars of sales.

I declare under penalty of perjury that the foregoing is true and correct. Executed in Plano, Texas on 9/8/10, 2010.

JOINT FAO/WHO FOOD STANDARDS PROGRAMME CODEX COMMITTEE ON FOOD ADDITIVES AND CONTAMINANTS

Thirty-eighth Session

The Hague, the Netherlands, 24 – 28 April 2006

DISCUSSION PAPER ON ACRYLAMIDE

(prepared by United Kingdom and the United States with the assistance of Canada, Norway, Sweden, Switzerland and CIAA)

Governments and international organizations in Observer status with the Codex Alimentarius Commission wishing to submit comments on the following subject matter are invited to do so no later than 7 April 2006 as follows: Netherlands Codex Contact Point, Ministry of Agriculture, Nature and Food Quality, P.O. Box 20401, 2500 E.K., The Hague, The Netherlands (Telefax: +31.70.378.6141; E-mail: info@codexalimentarius.nl - preferably), with a copy to the Secretary, Codex Alimentarius Commission, Joint FAO/WHO Food Standards Programme, Viale delle Terme di Caracalla, 00100 Rome, Italy (Telefax: +39.06.5705.4593; E-mail: Codex@fao.org - preferably).

BACKGROUND

1. The 37th session of the Codex Committee on Food Additives and Contaminants (CCFAC) agreed that the Discussion Paper on Acrylamide¹ should be revised, taking into account the 64th Joint Expert Committee on Food Additives (JECFA) evaluation of acrylamide; national mitigation strategies; and the role of food processors, catering services, and consumers. The Committee also agreed that the Discussion Paper should also include an outline of a Code of Practice and a project document for starting new work on the elaboration of the Code of Practice for possible future submission to the Commission.
2. The Committee agreed to establish a Working Group, led by the United Kingdom and the United States, to revise the Discussion Paper, taking into consideration the above discussion, for circulation, comments and consideration at its next session.

INTRODUCTION

3. In April 2002, researchers from the Swedish National Food Administration (SNFA) and the University of Stockholm announced that acrylamide is formed in a variety of baked and fried foods cooked at high temperatures². Since the Swedish report, similar findings that acrylamide is formed primarily in carbohydrate-rich foods of plant origin prepared or cooked at high temperatures have been reported in numerous other countries³⁻⁶.
4. In 2002, the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations (FAO) and the World Health Organization (WHO) held a consultation on the "Health implications of acrylamide in food" and made a number of recommendations⁷.

Table 1: Summary of reported levels of acrylamide in food

Food Group	Food Product Group	Acrylamide levels (µg/kg)
		Minimum	Maximum
Potatoes	Potato crisps ^a	117 ^b	3770 ⁴⁵
	Chips/French fries ^{b, c}	59 ⁴⁶	5200 ⁴⁷

^a Potato snack product that is thinly sliced and fried (includes foods called potato chips in some regions including North America).

^b Potato products that are more thickly sliced (referred to as French fries in some regions including North America, or as chips in the UK).

^c Higher levels have been reported in overcooked home prepared products, such as the overcooked French fries sample reported with an acrylamide level of 12800⁴⁷.

^d Cocoa powder for baking.

^e Analysed as sold (as roasted/instant coffee/coffee extract powder), not prepared for consumption.

^f It is not clear whether the sample for the minimum value was analyzed as sold or as prepared for consumption. The sample for the maximum value was analysed as sold, not prepared for consumption.

^g Roasted tea (hoji tea) contained 519 to 567 ng/g and Oolong tea ranged from <9 to 142 µg/kg, respectively. Samples of Green Tea, Tea (Black) and Pu'er tea either did not contain detectable acrylamide [<9 µg/kg] and / or contained trace levels [9 to 30 µg/kg]⁵².
